ASPARAGUS GROWING

Could Be Made a Big Money Crop Here.

A. W. Brown has the distinction of shipping the first asparagus from the Sanford section or from the State of Florida. Mr. Brown has a fine place near Rand's Siding on the west side, and among other crops tried asparagus this season. His success has been phenomenal, and this week several crates of this succulent vegetable were shipped to northern epicures, bringing the princely sum of $10.00 per crate. Thus another profitable crop has proved a success on Sanford's sub-irrigated land.—Sanford Herald.

Sanford may be the first town in Florida to grow asparagus for shipment, but it is certain that Tallahassee has been successfully growing it for years. The editor of The True Democrat a few days ago was shown in a local garden as fine stalks as were ever grown, and those without any fertilization or cultivation. Asparagus is about the most valuable vegetable grown, being exceedingly highly prized in northern markets. The earliest asparagus to reach the eastern markets is from California, and that goes in the latter part of this month. Tallahassee could have been shipping it for three weeks.

There would be much money in this crop if our people would but devote the necessary attention to it.

A FLORIDIAN'S SACRIFICE.

Suffers Himself to be Skinned to Save Life of a Child.

One of the volunteers in Atlanta this week to save the life of a child, gave of his skin to help heal her.

About three months ago Estelle Williams, who lived at Smyrna, Ga., was terribly burned while trying to light a fire for her still smaller brother and sister. She was carried to the Wesley Memorial Hospital, in Atlanta, where she hovered between life and death.

Harry Meyers, of Tampa, himself a patient, who had come to the hospital to be operated on as a result of an accident, when the physician announced the necessity for another skin graft, he immediately volunteered, and insisted that his offer be accepted.

So he was anesthetized Thursday and an operation performed, which it is believed will prove successful. Large portions of skin were stripped from his thighs and grafted upon the child.

This skin was stripped off in this slice, cut with scissors borrowed for the purpose from the Piedmont Barber Shop. The young man was literally skinned alive as was Marsyas by Apollo. Of course, the operation itself was painless, because he was unconscious, but he suffered agony after the influence of the drugs had passed away.

A HALF MILLION BOYS

Begin Their Downward Course Each Year Over the Whiskey Route.

Rev. A. S. Eaton, Superintendent of the National Ministerial Prohibition Alliance, who has been attending the Chautauquas over the State, spoke at the Baptist Tabernacle in Tampa, and during his discourse said :

The real prohibition movement, the speaker contended, started in the forties, when men first began to pledge themselves to refrain from the use of alcoholic beverages. From that time on the movement grew, but the breaking out of the Civil War turned attention to other matters and ground was lost. After the war the movement had to be started anew. He laid great stress on the fact that the Supreme Court of the United States in the first application made to it on the question, decided unequivocably that States have a right to prohibit the sale and manufacture of alcoholic drinks within their borders. Seven victories, in all, he claims, have been won in the Supreme Court, and more recently two Circuit Courts in Indiana have set precedents, one by holding that the preamble of the State Constitution stating the purposes of the government to be "the protection of the people" to render licensing saloons illegal, and the other by holding saloons to be "nuisances" in the full sense of the law.

Speaking along the usual lines in regard to the alleged harmfulness of the use of alcohol, the speaker declared that alcohol is annually responsible in the United States for the murder of 1,000 wives by drunken husbands, 5,000 suicides, 9,000 murders, 60,000 girls betrayed and 200,000 youths not going on the downward road. He declared if all the people killed and ruined in a year were placed in a line they would stretch from Tampa to Cincinnati. The speaker declared that in the fight for prohibition in the Southern States, the North stood ready to help, and that for every dollar contributed in Florida, the central committee of the movement would duplicate it.
